

Palazzo Chupi

Description

Julian Schnabel has created a timeless masterpiece at 360 West 11th Street, where he has envisioned and designed every detail and glorious nuance in this remarkable antithesis to the current glass box era of architecture.

Drama, scale and indulgence direct the design and finishes of what is truly a work of art, unlikely to ever be replicated. At Palazzo Chupi: walls are covered with rough hewn wood, layered with hand-applied plaster or set with ceramic tile, voluminous and grand living spaces with up to 19 foot high ceilings allow for massive works of art, enormous stone fireplaces and oversized French doors, handmade cast bronze handrails adorn copious and generously sized terraces and balconies with epic and incomparable views of Manhattan.

360 West 11th Street features all the amenities and services of a large condo building set in a private and discreet five unit building with a concierge, private parking, private storage and a dramatic sunlit 44 foot long swimming pool with steam room.
